Summertime, and Living is Easy

For awhile, particularly during February, it seemed that the school year would never end. There were term papers and endless play practices. These were followed by comprehensives and preparations for class days. And through it all there were lengthy homework assignments and hours spent in library research.

And now, although it seems almost unbelievable, this college year is nearly at an end. We have profited by this past year, maybe not so much as we should have, but undoubtedly we have gained a sense of values that will remain with us the rest of our lives.

As summer approaches we look forward to vacation as a "time off" from books and school life. Although we are expected to enjoy our vacation time, we should not waste it. The three months away from college could play as constructive a part in our development as the time spent at school.

During this period we should put to practical use the knowledge that we have absorbed during the academic year. It is during the summer that we meet the greatest variety of people and have an excellent opportunity to perform works of Catholic Action.

It is a common complaint on campus that one never has any time left over from homework for pleasure reading. Well, summer presents a perfect occasion to catch upon some worthwhile books. It would be a good idea to include some "deep reading" even if only to make sure that our minds can still function.

Many of us will be on our own during the summer. We will have a chance to prove what we are capable of accomplishing. Let us be sure that we do accomplish something. At the end of these three months we should be able to look back to our vacation, not as a break in our education, but rather as a fulfillment of it.

With rings on their fingers, they're belles on their toes. Barbara O'Donnell is to become the wife of Edward D'Arcy of Joliet, Illinois. The date of the wedding has not yet been set.

The wedding of Ann Charpentier to Russell Demarais of Springfield, Massachusetts, will take place in Fort Lauderdale this June. They will make their home in Kentucky.

Oliva Soldaña, sophomore, is engaged to José Molina of El Salvador. They plan to live in El Salvador.

Travelling with her ball-player husband will occupy Dolores Todd after February when she marries George Lyon, Jr., of Covington, Kentucky. George is on the Boston Red Sox farm team.

December 28 is the date set for the wedding of Kathleen Malone to John Greer of Magnolia, Ohio.

liam Eckstein of Evansville, Indiana, September 10. They will live in Bloomington, Indiana.

Athletic Association officials watch the class presidents plant their team flags at the opening ceremony of Olympic Day.

Olympic Day

Sports and Spirit Featured As Senior Class Triumphs

Olympic Day, May 6, marking the first time such an event has ever been held here, was unanimously voted the most successful athletic contest of the year. Games, ranging from softball through table tennis to croquet, were played in intramural competition.

Points were given for class cooperation, class banner, and games won by class teams.

First place for cooperation went to the senior class, as did first place for the best Olympic banner. Their banner was patterned after the American flag and featured thirteen red and gray stripes, signifying the thirteenth graduation class. The "stars" were diplomas and mortar boards, one for each member of the class.

Volleyball, relay races and softball were the triumphs of the sophomores. Softball was an especially exciting event, highlighted by a close final game between the freshmen and the sophomores, with the latter winning by one run.

Skinned knees were the trademark of those who played basketball. After several hard-fought games, the freshmen won, with the sophomores running second. Tennis was also won by the freshmen, as were table tennis and archery.

The seniors play a wicked game

Professor Accuses Arts Colleges of Neglecting Politics

What are liberal arts colleges doing to help students understand national problems? Very little, according to Dr. Frank Johnson, speaking at a joint Florida Intercollegiate Student Government and Press Association meeting at Rollins college.

Patricia Oak, Georgann Travnikar, Jane Burman, and Isabel Dempsey attended the convention in Winter Park as student government representatives.

Dr. Johnson, of the Rollins history department, stressed the fact that politics plays a part in our every day lives. Students should be vitally interested in learning more about this subject, he insisted.

Causes for the lack of understanding, according to Dr. Johnson, include: fear of discussing controversial subjects, lack of funds for new enterprises, diverted interests of teachers, and the inertia of many professors.

Results of a panel discussion on the value of the FISGA show that the delegates believe it brings about better relations between colleges. Individually, the delegates can acquire leadership, initiative, poise, and experience in discussing problems with others.

Jim Luce of Florida Southern was elected president for next year. The vice-president is Carver Portlock of Bethune-Cookman; Don Gregory of the University of Miami, secretary-treasurer; Jon Dunn-Rankin of Rollins, parliamentarian.

Art Major to Display Stations in Ceramics

For her senior project art major Barbara O'Donnell is making the Stations of the Cross in unglazed ceramics. She will display her work at an exhibition here the last week in May.

Barbara begins each station by modeling it in clay and casting it in a one-piece plaster mould. Then she reproduces it in its final clay medium.

The station, modeled in low relief, is next sprayed with a dark underglaze to emphasize its form. Each finished station will be mounted on dark tile.

The college plans to keep Barbara's project on exhibit and later to give it to a needy missionary church.

Barbara won first prize in a campus art contest last year for her sculptured head "Prejudice." She has worked in all the artistic media, but prefers ceramics. She is planning to teach art next year.

Unsuspecting Army of Campers Falls Prey to Insect Attack

By RUTH RUGH

The insect infantry was firmly entrenched in strategic cabin positions at Greynolds Park when the invading Barry battalion arrived expecting to take over the terrain without a struggle.

Several front line snipers of the rat platoon moved boldly forward in an effort to detect the Barry stronghold, but were thrown back when jet ace Clarice Moyle, daringly facing the enemy fire, killed the leader of the charge with Barry's most powerful weapon, the broom. Suffering heavy casualties, the enemy retired temporarily until after dinner when they struck again in full force.

Under cover of darkness, the spider patrol, the cockroach brigade, the scorpion platoon, backed by the general rats, poured through the two-inch gap under the cabin doors.

They took up their positions in corners and cracks to wait until the four commanding generals (known as seniors), lulled into a sense of false security, sat down to play cards. Then the rat general arrogantly stepped out in full view to survey the situation.

Officers Reiss, O'Donnell, Schmitz and Petrossi, seeing the threat to the whole camp if they lost their strategic position, let fly all the small arms at their disposal, with foot stamping and shrieks, in an effort to frighten the formidable enemy away. But the rats held fast to their positions.

The seniors, with no heavy weapons at their disposal, grabbed what few provisions they could and retreated to positions (known as cars) for the night.

Next afternoon, the vanquished, suffering many small wounds known as mosquito bites, gathered up the whole camp and made a final retreat to the college where they are now attempting to treat two shell-shocked seniors (who, for security reasons, prefer to remain nameless) who still claim they saw flying rats.

Troops who received citations for bravery above and beyond the call of duty were Cecile Roussell, Mary Anne Jensen, Marlene Storch, Catherine Friedheim, Mary Jo Wright, Carolyn Gardner, Jackie Brisbin, Mary Jean Maloney, Joan Ryon, Lois Matia, Pat McGoldrick, Rosemary Brennan, Pat Mies, Shirley Hodge, Emma Grady, Kay Wodtke, Pat Henle, Betty Demirgian, Martha Hillenbrand, Marie Kersting, Pat Reilly, and Beth Frost.

Bible and Declaration Presented to Library

Recent additions to the library are a framed copy of the Declaration of Independence and a leather bound edition of the Holy Bible, edited by the Rev. John P. O'Connell.

A Catholic dictionary and a collation of texts from the New Testament are included in the Bible, which is colorfully illustrated by James J. Tissot. It was presented to the library by the Barry College Auxiliary, April 20, 1953.

Mr. C. G. Kurz, father of Mary Kurz, sophomore, presented the copy of the Declaration of Independence to the school.

Playhouse Presents One-act Comedies

Two one-act comedies were presented by the Playhouse, Tuesday evening, May 12.

Members of the cast of Thursdays-At Home by Mae Hawley Barry were: Patricia O'Connor, Julie Bowen, Caroline Childs, Lois Matia, Joyce Snowden, Rosemary Brennan, Eleanor Kenyon, Isabel Harty, Elaine Franks.

Mary Emma Grady and Shirley Hodge presented A Pair of Lunatics by W. R. Walkes.

Both plays were acted in ring theatre and were directed by Sister M. Grace Alma, O.P.

Carousel

By CONNEE BALDWIN

The main topic of conversation lately is the tremendous school spirit evolved from Olympic Day. Which brings to mind the suggestion made to make this a bi-annual affair—perhaps with one taking place in November when things are dull.

Congratulations are in order to Nancy Schmitz, selected by the Miami Herald as the Barry graduate of the year. She appeared in a special feature article about representative seniors from the University of Miami, local high schools, and B.C.!

Year-end proms are taking Barry girls both far and near. Attending the Junior-Senior prom at Notre Dame were Joanne Rerucha and Dee Snow. And over at the University of Miami, where they danced to the music of Tex Beneke, were Carol McGuire, Joan Gennett, Sylvia Nunez, Pauline Fisher, Norine White, Shirley Bliss, Claire Senger, Nan Mullan, and Pat Mies.

'Seems as if anytime one turns a radio on she hears one of Barry's public service announcements about the nursing school scholarships. The new nursing program is surely doing things for our public relations!

Daughter will precede mother in graduation when four-year-old Cathie Newkerk graduates May 30 in white cap and gown from junior kindergarten into senior kindergarten. Her mother, Dott, will graduate from B.C. on June 3.

Staff members in Angelicus 114 are slowly suffocating. The press room has been turned into a hospital for ailing African violets and the windows can't be opened lest any rude breeze disturb the recuperation of the delicate plants. However, the hospital staff will tell you that the results of the tender care are reward enough—in three colors: white, purple and pink.

The carousel has just about slowed down to a stop. But with the summer plans of traveling, going to school, and working, we feel sure that come September the old merry-go-round will be in full swing again. So we'll see y'all around!

June 22 Opening Date For Summer Session

The summer session will begin here June 22 and continue through July 31. Registration for the summer school will be held June 19-20. Men will be accepted.

The Rev. Casimir Zvirblis, O.P., will be the chaplain and professor for the summer. Father Zvirblis teaches at Providence college, Rhode Island.

Courses will be offered in the fields of art, music, speech, business, education, history, literature, home economics, philosophy, and sociology.

Classes will meet daily, Saturday excepted. Private music lessons may be taken by special arrangement.

Grads Plan Careers; Teaching, Marriage Take '1's of Most

Post graduate plans are buzzing around the campus as the seniors are preparing to make their exodus from college life.

Katherine Jumper will enter the Dominican order at Adrian, Michigan, on June 21.

Planning to spend their working hours in the "wild blue yonder" as airline stewardesses are Marion Petrossi and Maria Lloveras.

Dorothy Newkerk will start graduate work in English at the University of Miami this summer.

While their plans for the future are otherwise rather indefinite, Matilde Ramos and Virginia Waters will spend part of the summer months in Mexico City.

Jane Burman will intern as a dietician at the Henry Ford hospital in Detroit, while Nancy Schmitz will be doing the same thing at Cook County hospital in Chicago.

Noemi Garcia will be teaching at the Colegio St. Antonio, Guayama, Puerto Rico, for former faculty member Sister Mary Jean, O.P., who was transferred there last year.

In keeping with the June bridal tradition, Ann Charpentier will marry Russell Demarais early in June. Elisa Cartana will marry Alphonse Faulksta on the twentieth.

Norine White and Ruth Nolle will return to summer school at Barry to complete their teaching certification.

The plans of Betty Demirgian, Beatrice Washbish, Ileana Lopez, Mary Rose Scanlon, Pauline Fisher, Barbara O'Donnell, and Patricia Sandre are indefinite for the summer months but they will be busy in their major fields before September rolls around.

Patricia Oak plans to do chemical research in New Jersey, and Joan Burman has been given a position in cancer research by the American Cancer Society in Detroit.

Education majors have teaching positions from Maine to Puerto Rico. The following girls have tentative teaching appointments: Sheila Brown, Maine; Ruth Hilgendorf and Monica Wall, Opa Locka elementary; Frances Dougherty, Katherine Hodson, Carole Turner, Miami schools; Constance Feak, Toledo; and Shirley Bliss, New York.

Jean Gannon will teach in the public school system at Clinton, Massachusetts.

Mary Margaret Reiss will join the staff of social workers at the public welfare department, in Elizabethtown, New York, for a year, after which she will go to Fordham university for graduate work in sociology.
