

The Barry Buccaneer

Enrollment up, admissions staff upbeat

Nothing, not even Hurricane Andrew, can stop this university. Within hours of the hurricane that devastated South Florida, university maintenance people, grounds crews, and staff were busy putting the campus together again in order to welcome students to the 1992-93 academic year.

Growth is again this year's big story for our university. The statistics are impressive. Not counting our satellite campuses or ACE (the university adult and continuing education division), the enrollment figures for the 1992-93 year are high. Our total student population is 3,717; a total of 1,753 are undergraduate students. The student population is 48% male and 52% female.

Geographically, Florida residents constitute 61% of the total student body, 22% out-of-state students, and 17% international students.

Our out of state and international students represent 33 states and 66 countries. Dana Bardwell, Director of International Admissions, states that international students are a very important part of the student body. The Office of Admissions works very aggressively in recruiting culturally diversified students.

According to Robin Roberts, Dean of Admissions, "Our objective is to maintain strong growth into the 21st century while maintaining the highest standards, thus assuring the continued success of Barry University as the premier Catholic university in Florida."

In order to accomplish this objective, the Office of Enrollment Services, located in Kelley House, is made up of several departments including Undergraduate, Graduate, International and Podiatric Admissions. Other departments within the Enrollment Services division include Financial Aid, Transcript Evaluation, Academic Publications and Advertising, Customer Service and Administration. Enrollment Services has approximately 50 full time employees.

The Admissions Staff

Offices for undergraduate, graduate, international, and podiatric admissions are each responsible under the leadership of a director for the recruiting, counseling and retention of students in their specific areas. In addition, a Financial Aid department is responsible for providing assistance to students who require financial support, whether need or merit based, to attend school. The Financial Aid department facilitates the application process while offering counseling services and administering funds.

Other departments include Transcript Evaluation, responsible for evaluating students' previous college level work and deeming which credits are transferable towards a degree at Barry University, Academic Publications and Advertising, responsible for printing each division's publications and placing university advertising, Customer Service, which welcomes every student or prospective student and the Administration branch - the Dean's staff - which provides the direction and leadership necessary to run the day to day operations of the Enrollment Services division.

This is an ever-growing university, as the figures and statistics show.

... but parking becomes a major headache for students

By Guillermo Gonzalez del Campo

If students and faculty members want to park without having to go around in circles like a spinning top, they have to get to Barry in the early morning hours. Three types of parking spaces are available at Barry: for residents, faculty and staff, and commuter students. It seems that there is enough room for everybody to park their cars. But, is that true?

A couple of years ago the commuter parking lot was not so crowded. In fact, a student could park with no trouble in the mornings. That was two years ago.

Today, if a commuter student has a class after 9 a.m., he would have to spend some time looking for a parking space. If the person is in a rush, he has to park off campus. But, wait a minute! Didn't students pay for a $10 decal to park on campus? Shouldn't students park within campus limits? Stanley Young, Director of Security, does not think that "the ten dollar fee of getting a parking decal automatically reserves a spot for you. We are trying to establish more and more designated parking." The parking situation at other universities, like the University of Miami, is not as good as Barry's, according to Young. "Parking is a privilege, not a right." To find a parking space he recommends students give themselves plenty of time before class.

"Parking is a privilege, not a right."

Stanley Young
Director of Security

Harry Diaz, a commuter student from Santo Domingo, says he has trouble finding a space in the commuter parking lot. "It depends on the time. The early morning hours are the only time one can find a parking space." He added that when he is not able to park on campus, he leaves his vehicle "on the outside walls of Barry or at any available parking space around." Diaz believes that the $10 decal gives him the right to park within campus limits. Last Spring Diaz got a ticket for parking where he was not supposed to. He said, "I tried appealing once. They told me that I would get an answer in thirty days. That was last Spring. I still do not have an were." Diaz believes the University should try to solve the parking problem.

Associate Communications Professor Dr. Peter Panos, said that staff members from the department do not have trouble parking their cars on the spaces available behind the communications building. Panos also added that professors should not get ticketed for parking where they are not supposed to.

Associate Economics Professor Dr. Hugo Hervitz said, "It is relatively easy, depending on the time you come to work. For faculty in the School of Business, the Andreas lots are getting a little full. Then we have to park across the street in the student lots. But even the location of this building is not too bad." Faculty and staff members do not pay for their university decal.

Young said, "There is no way that commuter students can park on campus; there is not enough space." According to a survey by Young, "from seven in the morning till three in the afternoon it (commuter parking) never crosses the maximum," of 494. The commuter's parking heaviest time is around 11 a.m., but there are still 20-25 parking spaces available, according to Young.

Resident students have a totally different story. Some say it is very hard to find a space on campus. Young said, "As of today, I've got 217 spaces designated to resident students. As of today I have 183 cars registered." He added that people do not register their cars, and if there is a parking problem on Campus, he cannot argue that they need more space. A basic problem Young does see with parking is, "If I park in your space, you have to park in somebody else's space, and so it's a domino effect. If everybody parks where they should, we have enough space."

Are the vehicles with decals parked off campus being watched by the security guards as often as the vehicles parked on campus? Young said, "That area is not designated parking by the university." So he does not encourage students to park outside because "it is not as safe."

According to students, it is a problem to park on campus. Officials and faculty members find that parking spaces are not a problem. They say that if students give themselves enough time to park they are likely to find a space during the busy hours. Students should also register their cars in order to demonstrate validity in their complaints about the parking problem.

Voter apathy: Will the silent voices be heard?

By Colleen Casey

As November approaches, politically paid advertisements saturate prime time television. The private "affairs" of politicians become headline news, and the debate over which candidate's wife bakes a tastier chocolate chip cookie will continue. But what does the 1992 presidential election year really mean to college students? Is it just another year of deadlines, final exams, and socializing, or is it also a time for students to follow campaign trails and think about issues that can affect the rest of their lives.

In the past, college campuses around the nation have been havens for political activism where students demonstrated to voice their opinions. However, political participation and interest among college students has dramatically decreased since 1972. As a result, the Gallop Poll of the 1988 presidential election show that only 20% of voters between the ages of 20-24 actually voted. The present trend reflects that college students are apathetic, but do Barry students contradict or correspond with the current trend?

So, what does the 1992 election mean to Barry students? On the issues, the student responses revealed a shared concern for direction of the economy and education.

Anne Martinez, a senior, said "Clinton, because the country economically needs a change. The middle class needs a chance. They've been the forgotten crowd."

Another Clinton supporter, David

Schneider, said, "Clinton seems to be pro-education," when asked what candidate represents the issues he is concerned about. Although students seemed to look at Clinton as a voice for the new generation, Barry students feel Bush is a better representative of family values, such as anti-abortion. Trudy Guettler, a senior, said she is going to vote for Bush because of his stand against abortion.

Although students seem to be concerned with issues that affect their lives, their concern may not be enough. Voter apathy is the highest among college students and students of Barry share the nation's apathy. Corrine Ruttiger, a junior, said she was not registered to vote "because there's nobody to vote for anyway. It's all a bunch of scams." Unfortunately, as the Gallop Poll indicates, her opinion is shared by many students.

Voter apathy among the students can be attributed to two factors. First, students feel politicians are all corrupt and seek office to serve their own self-interests. Second, students who attend college out of their home state claim it's too much of a hassle to vote with an absentee ballot.

And so it seems that Barry is as divided as colleges throughout the nation concerning the issues of voting. Perhaps Gregory Kirpatrick, a sophomore, best summed up the reason when he said, "The younger generation has no faith in the older generation or themselves; otherwise they would vote."

Barry expands outreach to Treasure Coast

With the official 1992 opening of its Treasure Coast campus in Port St. Lucie, Barry University has expanded its 52-year heritage of providing higher education in the Judeo-Christian tradition in South Florida.

Sister Jean O'Laughlin lauds the Campus as the "beginning of a new history and the continuation of an old history."

The Rev. John F. O'Grady, Dean of the Campus, explains that the new site will offer classes in Nursing (RN to BSN), medical lab technology, human resources development, and business administration. Barry's School of Adult and Continuing Education is also offering bachelor's degree programs in liberal studies, professional studies, and science in technology at the campus.

Initiated when the Thomas J. White Development Corporation donated 50 acres and $1 million to the college, the Treasure Coast Campus will in the future add a dozen buildings to the present site. Likely programs for expansion will include business, nursing, education, and computer science. Graduate programs are likely, especially in business.

Barry is establishing a unique partnership with nearby Indian River Community College at the Campus, explained

Father O'Grady. Students at IRCC will be able to transfer credits from their first two years of college while Barry will provide the junior and senior years necessary to complete a bachelor's degree. Through this and through the many plans which it has for expansion at its Port St. Lucie site, Barry clearly intends to provide quality higher education facilities for the Treasure Coast.

Universities receive grades, just like students do

Accreditation.

For most Barry students, the word has little meaning.

However, ask any college administrator or faculty member and they will give you a quick definition: work—lots of it.

But what does the word mean?

Quite a bit, if you are a college student. College accreditation means that your university has received national approval from one of the national evaluating agencies that have been established to give "report cards" to universities.

Barry has always fared well from its evaluations from the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS), an organization established in 1895 with six schools and today with over 11,000 members in 1991. Barry was first visited and favorably approved by SACS—one of six regional groups nationwide in 1947. The most recent reaffirmation of accreditation occurred in 1983.

According to Dr. Cecile Roussell, V.P. for Planning, Research, and Evaluation, the site visit to Barry by the visiting committee from SACS is scheduled for March 15-18, 1993. The team will be comprised of 17 persons from colleges and universities in the southeast (excluding Florida).

"We're looking forward to this visit as a way of showing how good Barry is," states Dr. Roussell. "This is an exciting time for Barry, for the year has been spent by administration, staff, and faculty in recapitulating all of the growth and the varied educational activities that we've been engaged in for the last ten years.

The paper work which SACS requires in order to document our growth is enormous, and it is this part of the process that Barry administration, faculty, staff, alumni, and students have been engaged in during the last academic year.

As the March visit gets closer, the Buccaneer will keep you informed about the ways that you can help in making the visitation go as smoothly as possible.

After all, it is in everyone's best interest that our university receive the favorable evaluation which it so richly deserves.

Learning Center continues to grow

By Kim Lumpkin

The Barry University Learning Center, a free service to all Barry students, has come a long way since its early days in Lavoie Hall. As you may be aware, it is now situated in the Garner building, room 113. Our expanded hours are Monday-Thursday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Friday 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Since the range of services which the Learning Center offers continues to grow, here is an overview of what is currently available.

MATH

Math tutoring is available for all students in all math courses on a walk-in basis.

ENGLISH

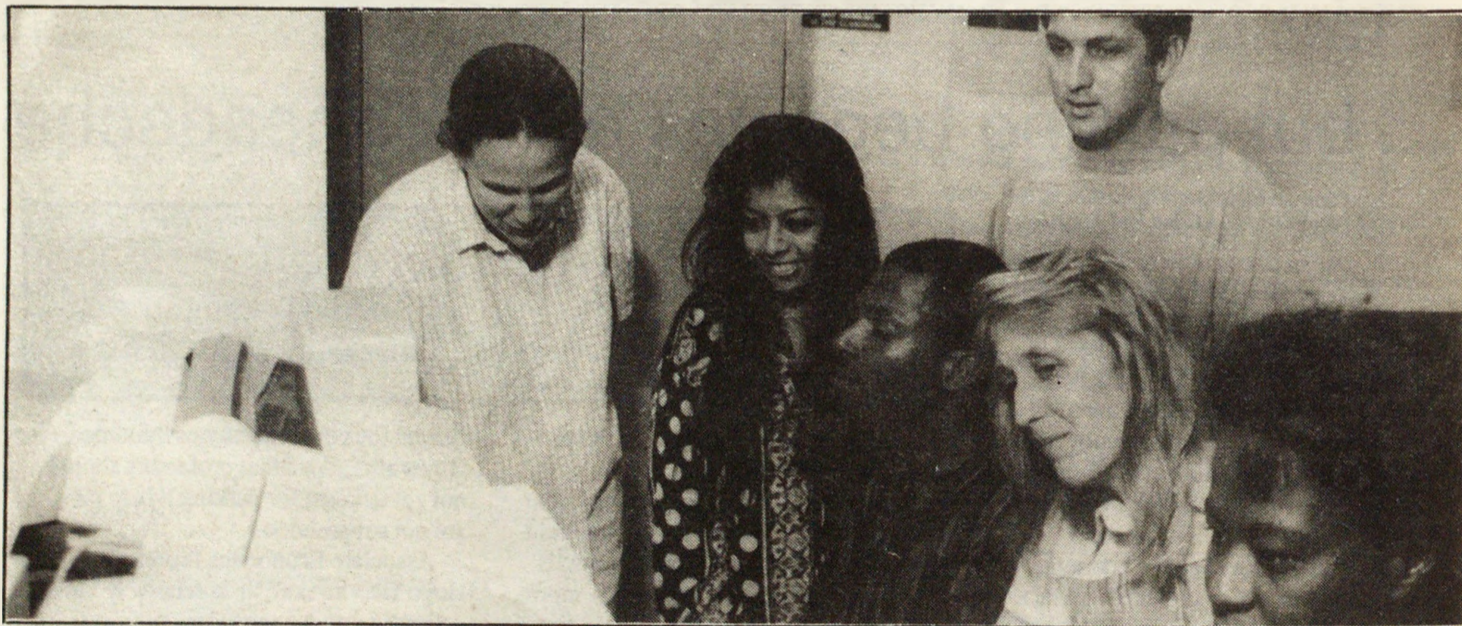

Reading: For anyone who needs assistance in reading, the Learning Center offers tutoring in specific reading skills as well as in different subject areas. Even if you don't need general reading instruction, you may find it helpful to review strategies for dealing with difficult texts.

WRITING

If you need help at any stage of writing a paper, the Learning Center will be glad to assist you. For best results, come by as soon as you are ready to start. We do not proofread, but if you would like an evaluation of the areas in your paper, leave it with us for 24 hours, so we can review it properly.

CLAST HELP

By now, you may have already heard about the important CLAST exam, consisting of math, reading, grammar, and essay questions. The Learning Center has several options available for preparing to take this test for the first time or for reviewing sections missed. The first is a series of seminars given two weeks before the test in each of the four CLAST areas. Although the dates have already passed for the upcoming test, you can still drop by the Learning Center for review, and computer practice is available for some sections. In addition, students who miss any section of the CLAST are required to take the appropriate CLAST review courses offered every spring and fall semester.

STUDY SKILLS

The Learning Center offers study skills seminars for all interested students. These will be given on Wednesday evenings from 7:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. beginning October 14 in Thompson 212. Students have found these sessions very helpful. The subjects of these seminars are as follows:

- 10/14: Meet Your Text and How to be an Active Reader/ Content Area Reading Strategies/Text Organization, Reading Strategies.
- 10/21: TBA
- 10/28: Continuation: Content Area Reading Strategy
- 11/04: Note-Taking: Lectures and Textbooks
- 11/11: Active Listening

11/18: (Cont.) Study skills and Test Taking Tips

11/24: TBA

12/2: TBA

12/9: Active listening: "Reading Your Teacher." Specific Strategies.

FRENCH AND SPANISH

For availability of tutoring in French and Spanish, check with your language instructor.

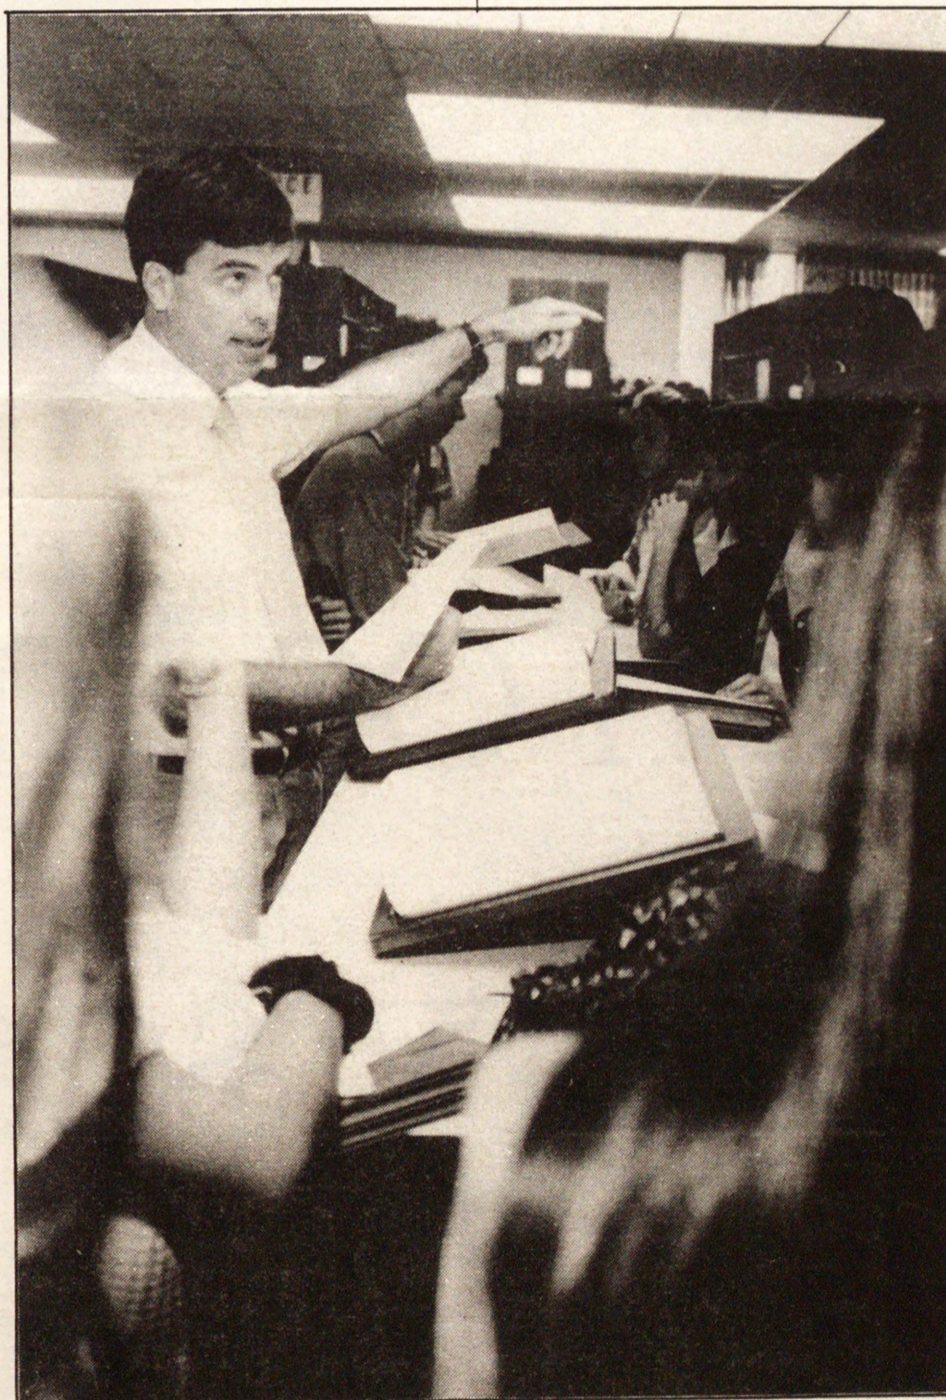

If you have ever visited The Learning Center, you know that it is always a busy place which serves a wide variety of students, from freshmen to graduate levels. We hope we can be of service to you throughout your years at Barry.

The Library steps are a great place to meet or to study.

Know your library, inside and out

The library houses over 600,000 items

Pat Morrissey, Reference Librarian, guides a class through the complexities of library research projects

A home away from home. That's how important a library becomes to university students during their college years.

To fill the needs of its students the Barry University Library continuously expands its staff, its holdings and its computer facilities. Service is a constant here at the Barry library, as any student who has tried to use libraries at other larger universities will tell you. Our library staff truly cares about your needs. Here you are not a number as you would be at many larger university libraries.

In addition to providing helpful suggestions about how to do research, the Barry University library provides immediate in-house access to 600,000 items and 2,000 periodical titles. Our membership in Southeast Florida Library Information Network (SEFLIN) expands accessibility by electronic request to 11.4 million items and 23,000 periodical titles available by daily courier service directly to the library. These holdings approximate the materials held by Harvard University.

Your first visit to the library this fall will introduce you to the automation project concerning our catalog which is now in progress. A grant from the Knight Foundation has made possible the Barry Library's participation in the 90's technology.

The library is open 93 1/2 hours a week: Monday - Thursday, 8:30 a.m. - 12 midnight; Friday, 8:30 a.m. - 10:00 p.m.; Saturday, 10:00 a.m. - 6:00 p.m.; and Sunday 2:00 p.m. - 12 midnight. Call 899-3776 for confirmation or changes in library hours.

Volunteer Center

The Volunteer Center is here located in Thompson Hall, Room 111. Students, faculty and staff looking for volunteer opportunities in the broader Miami community will find our center to be a valuable resource. We have numerous listings and a wide variety of community service options from which to choose. Calls come in daily requesting volunteers so stop by, take a look and make your unique contribution.

Academic Computing

The Academic Computer Center recently added a Help Desk for all computer-related problems. Staff members are on hand to take detailed accounts of problems or requests. The new system is expected to save time and improve the ability of the staff to respond to needs. The Help Desk can be contacted at 899-3604.

The hours of the Center for the Fall are:

Monday - Thursday - 8:00 a.m. - 12:00 p.m.
Friday - 8:00 a.m. - 10:00 p.m.
Saturday - 8:00 a.m. - 6:00 p.m.
Sunday - 1:00 p.m. - 12:00 p.m.

Career Assistance

Seniors and graduating students seeking employment should register with the Career Center in Thompson 208 now to take advantage of visiting recruiters and the national job databank, "kiNexus."

Prelude to a Kiss

Prelude to a Kiss by Craig Lucas will be performed at the Barry University Pelican Theater, October 9 - 11, at 8:15 p.m. and 6 p.m. General admission is $5. Admission for students and senior citizens is $4.

Kathi M. Novelli, a senior theater major, directs the fairy tale of two young lovers who take an unexpected ride on a roller coaster romance.

Campus Life isn't always hitting the books and being serious!

Seen on the Barry scene

What are the major teaching schools and departments at this university? To help students understand the variety of the academic programs that Barry offers, the Buc will highlight a different university school in each issue.

This issue focuses on the School of Arts and Sciences.

Under the leadership of Dean Laura S. Armesto, the School of Arts and Sciences provides enriching aesthetic, cultural, and intellectual dimensions to the university.

According to Dr. Armesto, "The eight departments of the School of Arts and Sciences offer 26 undergraduate major programs as well as additional courses in ten support areas." These eight departments include the following (total student enrollments are in parenthesis): Communication (120), English and Foreign Languages (54), Fine Arts (39), Mathematics and Computer Science (40), Physical Sciences (18), Psychology (120), Social Sciences (18), and Theology and Philosophy (25).

There are 73 full-time faculty on the staff of the school. Faculty also act as academic advisors to the majors within the school. The adjunct faculty group is composed of 35 members.

For Fall 1992 the school offered 504 courses, including such specialties as applied music, internships, and graduate research courses.

This year as always, reports Dr. Armesto, the School emphasizes programs that provide the strong academic foundations that students will require in order to enrich their personal lives as well as their careers.

There's always time to catch a professor out of class and ask questions.

Dr. Cecile Roussell, Vice President, Planning, Research and Evaluation, (Center), and her staff, Dr. David Molnar, and Mrs. Carol Ware, coordinate upcoming SACS visit.

Ask Dear Barry

Dear Barry,

I am a senior commuter student this year at Barry, and never before have I had so much trouble trying to find a space to park my car. The commuter parking lot is completely full by the time I come for my 10 a.m. class. I am then forced to park behind the walls surrounding the Barry campus. This was fine until I received a $20 citation from the North Miami Police Department for prohibited or hazardous parking. So, tell me, where am I supposed to park if there are no more spaces in the designated lots and if students are no longer allowed to park behind the walls surrounding Barry?
Frustrated.

Dear Frustrated:

I contacted security, and they told me that they are well aware of the parking crisis. You were ticketed because you parked on the west side of the school along North Miami Avenue. This is city property, and there are several signs that say no parking. Barry has no control over this area. If the commuter parking lot is full, you may park behind the walls on the North or South side of campus, and you will not get a citation for parking there. However, it is not as secure as the commuter lot. You may also park anywhere on campus after 6 p.m. if you have a night class, and you will not be fined.

Dear Barry:

I have an eating disorder. I've had this problem for almost two years now. Every time I eat, which is usually in large amounts, I vomit. I used to force myself to vomit because I wanted to impress others by being thinner. Now my actions are automatic.

I've caught myself lying and sneaking. I know this is wrong for me to do, but I can't seem to stop myself. I don't want anyone to know, not even my parents or close friends. No one understands. I'm all alone. Can you please give me some helpful advice? I need it.
Scared.

Dear Scared:

I know this must be very rough for you. First of all, you are not alone. Many people are going through the exact same thing you are. I know it's hard to face your close friends or parents with this, but at the same time you need someone to comfort you, to encourage you, and to support you. You can't go through this alone. At least you have realized your problem and you've asked for advice. That's the first step.

It's time to take the second step. A support group for people with eating disorders meets from 7 p.m. - 8:30 p.m. on the first and third Tuesdays of every month. It is free of charge. The number is 735-6000.

Call this number and find out more about the program. I know this will probably be the hardest thing you'll ever have to do, but it will be worth it. No one can force you to do anything you don't want to do. That is why it is up to you, and only you to get help. You have too much ahead of you to throw it all away now. I wish you the best of luck.

Dear Barry:

I feel very lucky having survived Hurricane Andrew, and now, I would like to help others in need. I heard around that Barry has some sort of program set up to help aid Barry victims of this disaster. Could you please tell me where I can make a donation?

Fortunate.

Dear Fortunate:

Barry has indeed set up a relief fund that has pulled in over $20,000 in collections and pledges from Barry friends, faculty, staff, trustees, and Adrian Dominican sisters. The money has been used to purchase supplies and to make cash donations to Barry faculty, staff, and students who have been affected by the hurricane. Students are more than welcome to donate whatever they wish. Just send the donation to Institutional Advancement in La Voie 211.

Do you have a personal problem you just can't seem to solve? Do you have a gripe or complaint about the Barry system? Well, Dear Barry can be of service to you. There will be a box next to the door of the Barry Buccaneer, Thompson 203, where you can drop off your letters. Letters do not have to be signed to be published. Every problem is completely confidential. You can put your trust in Dear Barry.

Association of Black Journalists Seeks Interns and Scholars

The National Association of Black Journalists (NABJ) seeks 1993 interns and scholars.

Interns must be members who are sophomores, juniors, seniors, and graduate students committed to journalism careers. The paid internships are offered in print, radio, still photography, and television. Deadline for applications is November 1, 1992.

Ten $2,500 scholarships are offered by NABJ to African-American journalism students. Applications must be received by Friday, March 26, 1993 by students with a minimum cumulative grade point average of 2.5.

For further information, write NABJ Internships or NABJ Scholarship Program at Box 17212, Washington, DC 20041, or call (703) 648-1270.

Don't forget to be charitable to the victims of Hurricane Andrew!

Political Interns

The South Florida office of U.S. Senator Bob Graham is interested in offering a limited number of unpaid, one-semester internship positions for the 1992-1993 academic year. The program can provide upper-level students the opportunity to experience firsthand involvement with the Senator's staff operations in the office. Interns will have a greater understanding of Graham's responsibilities by assisting constituents with questions they may encounter with various local, state, and federal agencies.

The responsibilities of an intern include analyzing incoming correspondence, investigating constituents' problems, assisting the Miami staff, managing incoming calls, research, attending special events.

Students interested in the internship should submit an application, a comprehensive resume of work experience, education, and extracurricular involvement, and a short essay describing why they want to be an intern.

The deadline for Winter, 1992 as well as summer sessions for 1993 is December 8, 1992.

For further information, contact Ellen Roth at (305) 536-7293.

Best College Students Sought for Academic Team

USA Today in cooperation with four higher education associations is beginning its annual search for the nation's best college students. Sixty of them will be named to a 1993 All-USA Academic Team.

Students selected to the first, second, and third teams will be featured in a special section of the newspaper planned for February 5. The 20 first-team members will be invited to receive their awards at a ceremony in Washington, D.C. and receive a $2,500 cash award. Any full-time undergraduate is eligible.

The key element being considered is the student's outstanding original academic or intellectual product. The student will be expected to describe the outstanding endeavor in his/her own words.

For further information, contact Carol Skalski at 703-276-5890, or write Pat Ordovensky at 1000 Wilson Boulevard, Arlington, VA 22229.

Co-Curricular Transcript

WHO You...Freshman/Sophomore/Junior/Senior

Do you have a co-curricular transcript? Probably not, but you can.

WHAT is it? A co-curricular transcript is a document verifiable by the university, highlighting all the extra-curricular activities you have participated in while here at Barry.

WHERE do I go to start my life? The Volunteer Center in Thompson Hall Room 111 is waiting for you.

WHY (do I need a co-curricular transcript?)

This could be just the information your future employer needs to decide you are the one for the job.

WHEN There is no better time than the present!!

There is no better time than NOW to become Roman Catholic. Discover why. Join Barry's RCIA program! RCIA—Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults—welcomes all students, faculty and staff who wish to become Roman Catholic, or who are already Catholic and either wish to receive the sacrament of Confirmation or to learn more about their faith. Vital to the success of RCIA is the active participation of committed Catholics who will sponsor our candidates, helping them to develop further their spirituality. Barry adds men's & women's crew to the athletic program

Crew has been added to the athletic offerings at the University. The non-scholarship team-membership sport is open to all students and currently has 36 students participating in two squads. The program is expected to include 70 to 80 students in the next four years.

University president Sister Jeanne O'Laughlin, O.P., Ph.D., believes that crew brings a new dimension to Barry athletics. "Both men and women can compete, and the number of students who can participate is virtually unlimited," she said.

The head coach of Barry's crew teams is Luis Gutierrez. He was instrumental in helping the University of Miami and Florida International University start their rowing programs. Gutierrez began practices in mid-September at the Miami Rowing Club, which he helped form in 1971. He has been the head crew coach at the Club for the past 17 years and has represented the Club while competing in national and world championships the past two years.

"I think we have a very fast novice boat for both men and women — they have the interest and the desire," Gutierrez said.

"They're going to be in top shape mentally and physically."

The men's team leaves Barry at 5:50 a.m. for its practice sessions and returns at 8:30 a.m. Women's crew members depart for practice at 3:30 p.m. and return at approximately 5:30 p.m.

"Crew is an excellent way for Barry to offer athletic competition for the overall student body," said athletic director Dr. G. Jean Cerra. "The sport will allow participants to strengthen their physical abilities, but more importantly it will allow for the development of mental discipline and teamwork."

pline and teamwork."

Barry's addition of crew makes the sport eligible for sponsorship by the Sunshine State Conference (SSC). The SSC requires four conference members to sponsor a sport before it recognizes a conference champion. Florida Tech, Tampa, and Rollins are the other SSC schools that sponsor crew.

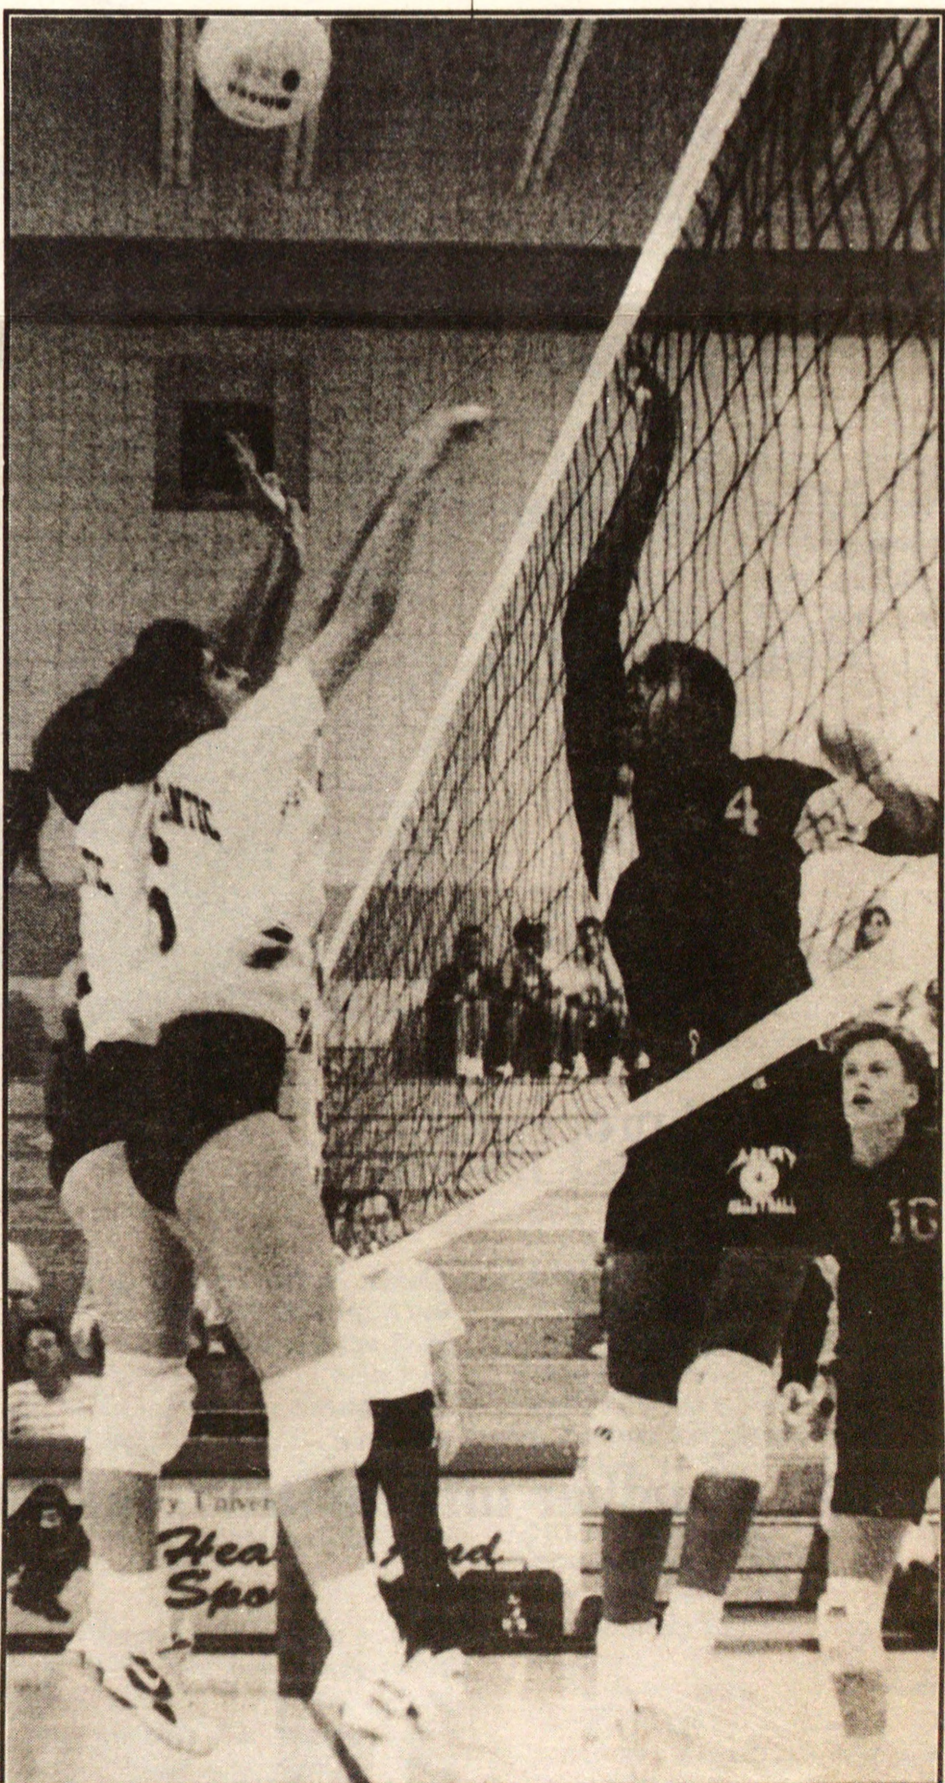

"The availability of quality competition throughout Florida, especially within the SSC, was a key factor in our decision to add crew," Dr. Cerra said. "Furthermore, with national competition organized under the USRA, our teams also will compete against squads from NCAA Division I universities such as Miami, FIU, Harvard, and other Ivy League schools.

This year, Barry will compete in the novice division, which includes all student athletes in their first year of collegiate rowing. The first competition will be at a FIRA event in Melbourne in November. Barry will also compete in the junior varsity and varsity divisions beginning next fall.
